For four or ofive years we have all been praying for a hard winter, and indications point to the winter of 1889 and 1890 as one "hard', enough to suit most any of us. Since November we have had more rain and snow than for several years, and the cold wave that has struck us makes it particularly rustle on the ranges, and the loss will necessarily be heavy. But we have the satisfaction of knowing that the coming harvest will be abundant and that the cattle that are left will command better prices than have ruled of late years. So take it all in all and we have nothing to complain of. By the workings of Nature things are evened up about once every decade, and what is good for one industry in one year is disastrous to another, but in the final balancing of accounts it all comes out about right, so let

Both Houses of the Fifty-first Congress are now fully organized. When they meet after the holidays all the wheels of legislation will be ready to set in motion. The promptness with severe on live stock that have to which Speaker Reed made up the committees of the House is much commended. So far as the casual observer can discover they are organized upon a basis of at least fairness to the West, which is contrary to the expectations of the Western men. This is especially noteworthy in the personnel of the Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measur One of the greatest fears of Speaker Reed entertained by them has been that he was so devoted to the monometallic idea that the Coinage Committee would be selected with an eye wholly unfriendly to silver. It is impossible at this time to precisely deterus hope for the best and trust to mine what the attitude of the committee will be, but it is obvious that the SENATOR STEWART paid his re- silver interest has a much stronger spects to Senator Blair of New and more aggressive representation upon it now than it ever had before in a forcible way. Blair said that For example, there is Bland of Missouri, the leader of the Democratic ninority of the committee; and Carter of Montana, who, representing a constituency most pronounced in favor of silver, will, it is fair to assume, be satisfied with nothing short of its complete remonetization.

Perhaps, however, the strongest and nost aggressive silver man upon that committee is Bartine of our own State. street, and who can see no kind of Ever since his arrival in Washington money but the kind that the gold- he has been outspoken at all times and in all places

IN FAVOR OF REMONETIZATION

In the most absolute sense. He has studied the question closely, and is prepared to take a leading part in the contest. Mr. Bartine was most strenuously opposed to Reed for the Speakership because of the latter's supposed hostility to silver, and did everything that lay in his power in a proper way to consolidate the entire Pacific Coast delegation in the House in favor of Numerous bills have been fntroduced in both the Senate and House on this subject. Senator Stewart's most consideration. And, by the way, there appears to be some misapprehension in Nevada about this bill. It provides that any person may take either gold or silver bullion to the Mint and receive either coin or coin certificates therefor at the ratio between these metals as now established by law. Some argue that it is no better than Windom's plan, and others, in defending it, claim that it is nearly as good as free coinage. Neither side appears to have carefully examined the bill. Free coinage without permanent provision for a public feed. nent provision for a bullion fund would not answer the purpose. It would in that case be easy, if the Treasury Department were so disposed, to limit the amount of coinage to any extent. In former years bullion de-positors were sometimes delayed for months before they could get their vill give a copy of the book.

In this case, the new subscriber will sell their bullion to bankers or brokers To all delinquent subscribers who will pay arrearages, and renew for one year, at $2 00 in advance, and give us one new subscriber, at $2 00, we will give a copy of this $3 00 book.

The new subscribers will also get a book.

INVOLVE A SILVER FIGHT

At every session of Congress to prevent it from failing. Therefore, in the case of free coinage, unless some percase of free coinage, unless some permanent provision is made for the bullion fund, there would be constant difficulty in getting bullion coined as fast as required. Senator Stewart's bill provides that the owner of bullion shall be paid in coin or coin certificates, and the advantage of this is that it requires no annual appropriation for a bullion fund. If there is no coin on hand at the Mint there would be no excuse for delay, because the owner of bullion could take coin certificates instead. These certificates are a legal tender, and just as good as coin; in fact, they would be generally preferred. No more coin would be demanded than was necessary for use in the business of the country. Those who have criticised the Senator's bill are advised to study it more carefully. They will then probably be satisfied with it.

At the invitation of the New York Tribune Senator Stewart has written an article on the silver question for that journal, to appear some time in February. The subject is presented in an entirely new, strong, and convincing manner. When the gold-bug journals of the East open their columns to the friends of the white metal it is easy to discern that the fight for its remonetization is to be waged here. manent provision is made for the bull-upon freer and more honest methods. The Senator has also been asked to contribute a paper on the same topic to Bedford's Mayazine for the March number Thus he toils on for the cause in session and out of session, in the Senate and all over the land. The silver superior is sure to receive silver question is sure to receive a great deal of attention during this Congress, and Senator Stewart will be found leading the silver host.

Intimately connected with this question is that of the importation of lead ores from Mexico. Under the rulings of the Treasury Department, all such ores, the silver in which is of greater value than the lead, are classified as out the payment of any duty. During the year 1888 it is estimated that more than 30,00 tons of metallic lead in these ores was thus imported, coming into direct competition with the great lead producing regions of the West. The effect upon silver-lead mining in Nevada, Montana, Colorado, Utah and Idaho has been disastrous in the ex-treme. To obtain immediate relief from this injustice, Mr. Bartine INTRODUCED HIS RESOLUTION

On the 20th inst. Last (Thursday) evening the Committee on Ways and Means, to which the resolution was referred, held a session devoted especially to this subject. Carter of Mon-tana, Townsend of Colorado and Bar-tine were present. Mr. Carter represented the ore producers at the hearing before Secretaries Windom and Tiche-nor last May, and is familiar with the question in all its details. His argument before the Committee was very fine, comprehensive and unanswerable Mr. Townsend ably seconded him, and Mr. Bartine closed the discussion.

He went less into details than the the went less into details than the others, his argument being a general rounding up and grouping of the salient facts of the case. He referred to the absurdity of the ruling, giving many pointed illustrations thereof, and stated that he had every reason to believe that President Harrison was in sym-pathy with us, but that he let bound by the rulings of the preceding ad-ministrations. He strongly urged the Committee to report his resolution feworably upon the ground that if we favorably, upon the ground that if we are suffering a wrong, the speedier the relief the greater the propriety. He cited precedents for its adoption and showed that it would give immediate relief, and that future contingencies could be provided for in the general revision of the tariff. He made a most favorable impression. The intimations dropped by members of the Committee were entirely in accord with the West ern view, and it is earnestly hoped by all that immediately after the reby all that immediately after the re-assembling of Congress the Committee will report the resolution back to the House with the recommendation that it do pass. Major McKinley, the Chairman, stated in so many words while Mr. Bartine was speaking, that the resolution would be brought before the Committee at an early day and the Committee at an early day, and some of the members are reported as in its favor.

Senator Stewart was also before the Committee this morning and urged prompt and effectual action. He was asked by McKinley to draft a provision to cover the case (which he will-do) consideration in connection with the tariff bill which the Committee is expected to lay before the House next February.

A great deal of time is devoted by having expressed themselves strongly

Senator Stewart each day among the Departments in relation to numerous delegation in the House in favor of some Western man friendly to that vital interest of his State.

Reed knew this, and, under the circumstances, the placing of Bartine upon this particular committee must be regarded as a great concession to the demands of the silver champions. The members of the committee are now scattered for the holidays, but it is expected that they will get together and organize immediately after the reassembling of Congress, and that active steps will be taken for the formulation of some bill looking to the settlement of this great question.

Senator Stewart each day among the Departments in relation to numerous matters

When interviewing him last evening he said it was impossible to recall all the things he had thus far accomplished, but the following are those which at the moment came to mind:

The amount remaining of the money appropriated for the construction of the Government building at Carson being insufficient to complete the approaches to it, he has induced the Supervising Architect to recommend an additional Architect to recommend an additional appropriation for this work. He will estimate what it will cost, and it is expected that the money will be pro-vided for in the first deficiency bill which passes.

At the Senator's request the Commissioner of Indian Affairs will recommend an appropriation of $25,000 for conducting the Indian School at Carson

Conducting the Indian School at Carson City, to run from the beginning of the next fiscal year, at which time it is hoped the building will be completed.
The Senator has discussed the matter of the so-called timber suits in Nevada with the Secretary of the Interior. He furnished him with a copy of Judge Sabin's recent decision in the action against the Richmond Mining Company, and requested that the remaining suits be dismissed. The Secretary has the subject under consideration. He intimated that he would probably comply with the Senator's request.

The reports of the Board of State War Claims of the War Department upon the claims of Nevada, California and Oregon against the Government, arising out of the War of the Rebelarising out of the war of the Reber-lion, recently transmitted to the Sen-ate, are of great importance to these States. Malaria

Is believed to be caused by poisonous mi-asms arising from low, marshy land or from decaying vegetable matter, and which, breathed into the lungs, enter and poison the blood. If a healthy condition of the blood is maintained by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, one is much less liable to malaria, and Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured many severe cases of this distressing affection

A Wonderful Medicine. "For malaria I think Hood's Sarsaparill has no equal. It has kept my children well right through the summer, and we live in one of the worst places for malaria in Marysville. I take Hood's Sarsaparilla for that all gone feeling, with great benefit." MES. B. F. DAVIS, Marysville, Cal.

LONG VALLEY NEWS.

tock Outlook in That Pro-

Long Valley, Jan. 1, 1890. there are some among your readers who are watching the course of events in our mountain regions, I volunteer a few words concerning such as are transpiring here in Long valley. I should state, however, that in this land of "magnificent distances" and sober people sensational items are rare and simple facts not specially significant. The all-absorbing question with us just now is how we are to CARRY OUR LIVE STOCK Through the next three months without loss. An extremely dry summer to be followed prospectively by a hard winter naturally creates some uneasiness. The outlook is certainly not ness. The outlook is certainly not cheering. Still, as a people, we are inclined to be optimistic: to accept whatever may be in store for us as being for the best. Down to the 21st of December our fields were bare of snow and the temperature had been mederate. Stock not previously put on outside ranges was doing fairly well. Since then scarcely a day has passed without snow squalls, more or less sewithout snow squalls, more or less severe. No great depth has been attained, due to the fact that while it has been snowing it has BEEN THAWING A LITTLE

From day to day, just enough to give the snow compactness and good sleighing. Our young people have not been slow to avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded for a little fun. At no time has the mercury been below 6° above zero, nor has it been even as low as that except for one night. Down to the present writing it has ranged from 22° to 32° above, with the exception noted.

Our neighboring stock ranges have about all the cattle they can carry, and even with what there are now on them it will be a case of "the survival of the fittest," or, perhaps, I should say a survival of the strongest. The real rustlers, the

This committee has on more than one occasion exhibited a friendly feeling towards the payments of these claims, and there is no doubt that the Senator, who is a member of the committee will prevail upon it to authorize him to report a bill for their settlement.

THERE ARE MANY PRECEDENTS Established by Congress govern ing such cases, and the outlook for an early allowance of these just demands is very favorable. The bill reintroduced by Senator Stewart to reimburse certain citizens of Nevada for expenses incurred in suppressing the Piute Indian War of 1860 will probably be soon placed on the Senate cal-endar. It will be remembered that this bill passed the Senate in May, 1888, and was reported favorably in the House some time later by Hermann of Oregon, but it was not passed by that body. Mr. Bartine is a mem-ber of the House Committee on In-dian Depredation Claims, and if the bill goes through the Senate again it will be faithfully fathered by him in the lover branch of Congress.

On the 16th inst. the Senate Committee on Public Lands reported favorably and without amendment Sen-ator Stewart's bill to open the abanator Stewart's bill to open the abandoned military reservations in Nevada to homestead entry. As it passed the Senate at the last session, it will undoubtedly be again passed when called up by the Senator, which he will up by the Senator, which he will do immediately after the recess. It meets with the satisfaction of the chairman of the House Committee on Public Lands. It was lost in the flood of the last days of the late Congress, but this time it is sure to become a law.

The report of the Irrigation Commit tee is being put in type at the Government printing office as rapidly as pos-It is estimated that it will make over 1,600 pages and will be divided into several volumes. After the holi-days the committee will take the testimony of the officers of the Geological Survey who have been in the field, and of other Government officials who have investigated the subject of irrigation. It will then prepare its views and formulate such measures as it may decide to submit to Congress. The Senate passed a resolution some days ago continuing the committee for this

THE IRRIGATION QUESTION.

Is assuming a front position among the important subjects demanding the attention of Congress. The new States of North and South Dakota have been given representation on the committee by the appointment of Senators Casev and Moody-both ardent advocates of irrigation—to its membership, instead stead of Allison and Hiscock. The creation of an irrigation committee in the House with Vandever of California as chairn an has given additional prominence to the question.

Senator Jones is in excellent health looking as bright as usual. He anti-cipates a lively silver fight and is pre-pared to take an active part in the contest. It is said that he intends to make a speech on this important ques tion which will excell his famous ef-ort of '78. His son, Roy, is spending his college vacation with him here. Mrs. Jones will probably join him in January. The Senator has not selected a house yet for his family for the coming year. He is on the look out for one, and it is reported that when the household is settled their home will be the scene of many bril-

Mr. Bartine left the city this morning to spend the remainder of the recess with his daughter and friends in New York and New Jersey. He will return about the 5th of January, in time for the re-opening of Congress or the 6th. He occupies a fine suite of rooms at 920 Fourteenth street, N. W.

reached the scene the bucket brigade had the fire under control. The damage was slight, everything considered, and consisted mostly of the cutting away of the walls, both inside and out, to get at the fire, and the damage done by water. Very few of the guests of the house disturbed anything, but acted with great presence of mind, and went to work putting out the fire, instead of "packing up."

It would have been "a cold day to have got left" without a home, and the Gazerre congratulates Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain and Mr. Thompson on their good luck.

The Northwestern Club, composed of members of the Congressional delegations from the old and new States and Territories of the West and Northwest, have established handsome quarters on Fifteenth street, next The Shoreham, the Vice-President's newly-erected flats. The people of the West can readily appreciate the significance of this organization. Many important measures will doubtless be conceived at its councils. Senator Stewart is president of the club.

BOWERSOX AS AN EDITOR.

Plunged in an Awfal Difemma by a Typo-grapical Blunder.

"Speaking of misprints in newspapers," said Uncle Silas Bowersox to a New York World man, "reminds me of a curious experience I had in that line when I was running a country weekly at Parker's Landing, before I quit the business and went to farming. In announcing the death of Mr. Mayapple, one of our citizens, I wrote that he died at his residence on Wednesday." To my awful dismay it appeared in the paper died at his residence on Wednesday. To my awful dismay it appeared in the paper that Mr. Mayapple did eat his residence on Wednesday. As soon as I discovered the fearful error I grabbed my hat and coat with the intention of leaving town for a few months, but before I could get out of the office the widow, tearful and tempestance of the control of the office of the control of the uous, came in upon me with a copy of the paper in her hand. She sat down on an up-holstered nail-keg, and, although a good deal out of breath, said, with much asperity: "See here, what in thunder do you mean by printin' in your paper that my husband eat his residence on Wednesday? You knowed you was utterin' a willful, malicious statement when you penned that audacious lie.

My husband is dead, sir, but I don't propose to let any lop-eared newspaper poke fun at him or me. Come up and see for yourself that his residence is standin' just as good as it ever was and hasn't been eat any more than you have, you low-lived leper! For a cent I would wipe the everlastin' earth with you and yer whole blamed printin' shop.' "As soon as I could," continued Mr. Bowersox, "I explained to the bereaved widow that it was a grievous misprint. I explained to her at length how editors were explained to her at length now editors were annoyed by typograpical errors, and how impossible it was to keep them from creep-ing into the paper, even as little boys creep under the circus tent. She was angry and ugly, and I had to write the two sentences together and show her that the simple change of place of one letter had made the whole dreadful error. I wrote the sentence out for her thus:

"In this way I was able to show her that by the letter 'e' slipping out of the word 'died' and taking its place before the next word, 'at,' the trouble had been done. She was satisfied at last that the statement had not been made intentionally, but insisted on a correction. I thought a correc-tion would only serve to attract public attention to the distressing matter, but she was firm and declared she would have a correction or blood would flow. As sne left the office she turned upon me with a glare in her eyes and said:

"'You git right down on your marrow-bones, old Huckleberry, and say yer newspaper lied or you'll hear from me agin!" I saw that a correction it had to be, and I saw that a correction it had to be, and in the next issue of the Parker's Landing Battle-Axe I said, in effect, that in justice to the family of the late Mr. Mayapple, and especially to his charming but bereaved widow, we wished to correct a misstate ment which appeared in our last issue. It was therein stated, we went on to say, that the late Mr. Mayapple 'did eat his residence on Wednesday.' We had found, on investigation, that this was not true, and while it was not apparent on its face, yet the statement was a very damaging one to the bereaved widow. As the statement is printed it leaves the said bereaved widow without a house to live in, without a roof between her bewitching head and the pelting storms of heaven-a statement which, if uncorrected, would have a tendency to interfere with her chances for a second, third or fourth marriage, as the case might be. While there are pienty of men in town who would be glad to take this charming widow without a house or home, without one cent to rub against another—aye, without a stitch to her back—yet the statement of the loss of her residence is untrue, and hereby stands corrected. We said further that it was a foolish statement to make in the first place, and a moment's thought, had he been place, and a moment's thought, had he been capable of such mental effort, should have convinced our reporter of his error.

Mr. Mayapple had been ill for a long time and could not have eaten his residence, even had he so desired. We find it was as much as he could do, with his impaired digestion, to eat the delicious pies and cakes with which his now bereaved but charming widow smoothed his pathway to tne tomb. Besides his dyspepsia, the late Mr. Mayapple was troubled with bad teeth, and any statement that he ate his residence was absurd in the extreme. It is true that the left wing of the house is gone and the portico missing, but these were blown away by the late cyclone. In this connection it is well enough to say that the rumor did not arise from a story cruelly bruited about the streets some time ago that Mr. Maypole IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE State of Nevada, in and for the county of Churchill.

charming widow could be found at her huscharming widow could be found at her hus-band's late residence. Her tearful eyes and widow's weeds would prove the state-ment of her husband's death, and the resi-dence itself would disprove the other statement that the same had been devoured by the late Mr. Mayapple.

"I made the correction as specific as possible," concluded Mr. Bowersox, "and the next time I met the widow she smiled sweetly but sadly, and, remarking that it was the nicest article she had seen in newspaper in a long time, invited me to call and see her." ORIGIN OF WORDS.

The Etymology of Expressions That Are in Every Body's Mouth. Etymology, though an exact and painstaking science, is absorbing and, contrary to general theories, very much alive. Some of what may be called its popular determinations the School Journal has recently published: There was an old practice, in the years agone, that a woman should never be mar-ried until she had berself spun a set of body, table and bed linen. It is not difficult to see how easily the term became applicable to all unmarried women, and finally became a law term and became fixed as

The word "teetotal" had its origin through a stuttering temperance orator, who urged his hearers that nothing less than "te-te-total" abstinence would satisfy temperance

The first vessel of schooner rig is said to have been built in Gloucester about the year 1713. When she went off the stocks into the water a bystander cried out: "Oh, how

It is said by the author of the "Queen's English" that the people of Carnwood Forest, Leicestershire, when they desire to hall a person at a distance call out not "halloo!" but "halloup!" This he imagines is a survival of times when one cried to another: "A loup! a loup!" or, as we would now say: "Wolf! wolf!"

"Hurrsh" is derived from the Slavonic hurs, "to Paradise," which signifies that all soldiers who fell fighting valiantly went straight to Heaven. "Prithee" is obviously a corguption of "I pray thee," while "marsy" was originally a method of swearing by the Virgin Mary.

The aristocracy of Spain was held to consist of those who traced their lineage back to the time before the Moorish conquest. These people were whiter than those who had been mixed with Moorish blood; the had been mixed with Moorish blood; the veins upon their 'white hands were blue, while the blood of the masses, contaminated by the Moorish infusion, showed black upon their hands and faces. So the white Spaniards of the old race came to declare that their blood was "blue," while that of the common people was black. The phrase passed to France, where it had no such significance, and was, in fact, quite an arbitrary term, and so to England and an arbitrary term, and so to England and America.

General Jackson, when judge, indorse "O. R." on many papers, meaning "order recorded." Major "Jack Downing" (Seba Smith) saw papers thus indorsed, but took the initials to be "O. K.," which he declared in fun was meant by General Jackson for "Oll Korrect." This took with the people, and is used still.

WORKING-MEN ABROAD.

What a Day's Work in the Countries of Europe Consists Of.

A return just issued in pursuance of an address from the House of Commons throws considerable light on the question of working hours in Europe, says the St. James' Gazette.

In France the hours of adult labor are regulated by a series of decrees, of which the earliest, promulgated September, 1848, enacts that the workingman's day in manufactories and mills shall not exceed twelve hours of "effective" or actual labor A decree issued in May, 1851, made exceptions, so that more hours might be worked in certain trades. Practically, the legal time is made to exclude rest. This makes the working day so much the longer Thus, one of the French inspectors states that the hours of attendance in factories under the act of 1848 are from five in the morning until seven in the evening or a total of fourteen hours, out of which there are twelve hours of "effective labor." But the same authority also states that "effective" time often extends to thirteen and fourteen hours in many weaving establishments. Finally, we are told that, "as a rule," it may be taken that Frenchmen employed in factories are present in the shops at least fourteen hours out of every twenty-

Among the countries having no laws affecting the hours of adult labor Germany is conspicuous. Employers, however, can not force their servants to work on Sundays and feast days. Employment of youthful or female labor in certain kinds of factories, which is attended with special danger to health or morals, is forbidden or made conditional on certain regulations, by which night labor for female workpeople is especially forbidden. In Germany, as in other countries also, women may not be employed in factories for a certain time after childbirth. In Hesse-Darmstadt the medium duration of labor is from ten to twelve hours; the cases in which the latter time is exceeded being, however, more frequent than those in which the former is not exceeded. The normal work day throughout Saxony in all the principal branches of industry is from six a. m. to seven p. m., with half an hour for breakfast, an hour for dinner and half an hour for supper. In the manufacturing industry there are departures from these hours, the period of work in spinning and weaving mills not infrequently being twelve. In Austria the law provides that the duration of work for factory hands shall not exceed eleven hours out of the twenty-four, "exclusive" of the periods of rest. These are not to be less in the aggregate than an hour and a half. The rule can be modified by the Minister of Commerce, in connection with the Minister of the Interior, allowing longer hours The hours have been so extended to twelve hours in certain industries such as spinning mills, and even to thirteen in silk manufactories. Sunday rest is enforced. In Hungary there is are not generally longer than in Austria.

THE FINAL OUTCOME. What the Earth Will Look Like in the Year 2.000,000 A. D. No particle of sand which goes down into the sea ever comes back, says the St. Louis Republic. Yet millions of particles leave the surface of the earth every second and are carried, suspended in the waters of more than 20,000 rivers. out into the ocean. There are more than 100 streams, classed as rivers, in the State of Louisiana alone. Each of these has several hundred creeks, brook and spring branches tributary to it. Each brook or spring branch, with its countless rivulets, clasps the hillsides and drags down the surfaces thereofdown into the brooks-down into the creeks-down into the rivers-down to old ocean. And there the atoms ros patiently: each atom waiting for other now resting in the green fleids, but soon to join the comrade gone before. To-day an atom forms part of a farm ir. Iowa or Missouri, to-morrow it is on its way to the gulf. This process has been going on since the beginning of time--since "the earth was without form and void;" the primeval rocks have been disintegrated and spread abroad in fertile field to be slowly sifted out and washed into the ocean; perhaps again to be upheaved and formed into islands and continents-abiding-places for coming generations. All life, animate and inanimate, is simply an illustration of this grinding down process; of the master rubbing down the bumps to fill up the hollows. The final outcome, after millions of rears, of this smoothing-down process on the surface of our globe, will make the earth partake of the nature of a huge billiard ball sailing through the skydevoid of hills or valleys, mountains or plains. An Idiotic Organization. There is a secret, organization in Balti-more, Md., the object of which is to protect its members from unfortunate marriages. When one of the club feels that he is falling "A schooner let her be," and from that time vessels thus rigged have gone by that name. The word scoon is popularly used in some parts of New England to denote the act of making stones skip along the surface of the matter and advise him therein,

A Cheap Disinfec The nitrate of lead is the cheapest disinfectant known that fulfills its intent. It is made by dissolving half a drachm of nitrate of lead in a pint of boiling water, then dissolve two drachms of ommon salt in eight or ten quarts of water. When both are thoroughly dissolved pour the two mixtures together, and when the sediment has settled you have a pail of clear fluid which is the saturated solution of the chloride of lead A pound of nitrate will make several barrels of the liquid.
